From the Editor's Desk . . .

THE BEST of good wishes for the coming year to each reader of these lines wherever you are and whatever may be your present pursuits and interests.

If you are not already enjoying an annual income of $5,000 or more, we hope you will soon become one of those "average citizens" for whom President Truman's economists are making such rosy predictions.

But whether 1950 brings greater prosperity or not, we sincerely hope there is a great deal of real happiness in store for you during this kick-off year of the new half-century.

FROM ANOTHER editor's desk came the statement reproduced below. Referring to the recent gift to the university by a prominent alumnus (see page 5), it was written by Gordon K. Bush, '24, editor and publisher of The Athens Messenger and a trustee of Ohio University, and appeared as an editorial in the local newspaper. It is reprinted by permission of the writer.

Well Deserved

The magnificent gift of money to Ohio University by John W.
Galbreath should be seen as the result of a lot of good things.

It could be, alone, considered as generosity; or, as a mark of unusual business success; or, as sentiment. It is much more than those things, for it throws the spotlight of acclaim upon the University itself, its administration, its faculty and its future.

The Galbreath gift is a mile post in the development of the new Ohio University under the leadership of President Baker. It is certification that the many improvements which have been brought about in the last five years are outstandingly worthy. It is notice to the world at large that a superior job is being done by the combined efforts of a large staff of specialists in education. It is encouragement of a positive nature for the effort needed to bring about the good things planned for future accomplishment.

State institutions are not often remembered either by wealthy estates or by successful alumni. They are supposed to be able to get along on appropriations of tax-collected monies and the fees paid by students. The thing lacking in that system, good as it be over-all, is that state universities need to do many things necessary for the proper development of ability in young humanity, but which features are not permitted by law to be undertaken with public money.

Gifts to the Ohio University Fund, Inc., as we have often pointed out, make possible a caliber of plus service which has come to have a real meaning in higher education—a richness of intellectual and inspirational leadership carefully applied so as to nourish ability which might go undeveloped under a routine system.

John Galbreath has understood and encouraged these things at Ohio University under the presidency of John C. Baker, and has previously given liberally to the institution. This gift of $50,000, however, is a mighty practical confirmation that the Ohio University has earned the right to it, and that the future of the University merits his confidence, as well as that of others.

That, it seems to us, is the most important thing for the friends of Ohio University to understand. The educational institution that a capable, successful man knows is doing a good job, is the one it is a pleasure to help.

Your University Today

A Message to Alumni From President Baker

As 1950—the second half of the twentieth century opens, every organization may well ask itself, what is our contribution to be now and in the years ahead to the preservation of human freedom and the dignity of man? These are the great issues today. No institution should be more thoughtful in answering this question than colleges and universities. At Ohio University constant attention is being given by faculty and administration alike to questions affecting our role in today's world. Answers appear not only in formal course work but also in the spirit that pervades an institution. In this message to alumni I shall outline some of the broad ways in which we hope to meet this challenge.

A thoughtful observer of American universities, Dr. Earl L. Vance, asked the following discerning question in a provocative article about universities:<sup>1</sup> "Where is there a university characterized throughout by a spirit of friendly two-way respect as between teacher and student, teacher and administrator, administrator and student?" I believe I can honestly say that we here in Athens have such an institution. The faculty and students are consulted and cooperate in important decisions and policies. This cooperation is not among a selected few, but includes a large number of faculty and students. Students serve as full committee members, and their advice and counsel are welcomed. In addition to committee work, a spirit of cooperation pervades faculty and student ranks. All know our objectives and work to achieve them. At Ohio University conditions exist, we believe, which permit many to learn of the "good life" by participating daily in it.

A second way in which any university will contribute to a better world is by means of its "tone" or "character." By "tone" I refer to the respect which faculty, students, and administrators have for high-quality work, personal character and integrity, human freedom, and respect for others. We are proud of this "tone" at Ohio University and hope it will continue to improve. This applies not only to our thinking about world crises but also to everyday relationships. Our free society demands strong, independent citizens of integrity. Universities can and must train such men and women.

Universities must also point the way to a better world by indicating to their students the present and future responsibilities of educated men and women. The future of our country and the world depends not only on education but also upon the active part which educated men and women take in public affairs. A free society flourishes only where public opinion aggressively supports democratic ideals and respect for the individual. Many temptations lure us away from these responsibilities and place security, personal comfort, success, wealth, and achievement ahead of public welfare. Education must stress "what leads to what."

DR. PHILIP ZENNER AND PRESIDENT BAKER

The picture on this page was taken when President Baker recently visited the home of Dr. Zenner in Cincinnati. Dr. Zenner, a retired physician, was 97 on May 17, 1949. He is a member of the Class of 1870 and is the university's oldest living alumnus.

We also hope that Ohio University will make a great contribution to the welfare of all, through you, the alumni. Here, a two-way exchange of information must exist, just as it does between students and administration or between students and faculty members. Alumni owe much to their university and to society. You are the present leaders—students will be the leaders of the future.

The relationship between American universities and their graduates is close and friendly and is getting closer as the years pass. Any well-established university knows that its alumni body is one of its greatest assets. The better any university becomes and the better its reputation, the more it means to its alumni. If, on the other hand, alumni fail to make their contribution to a university or to society, they also hinder and damage the contribution of the university. One outstanding characteristic of your university is the friendly relationships which exist between it and its thousands of alumni in all parts of the country. This relationship to be effective, however, must lead to close cooperation and deep interest at all times. Such cooperation will be welcomed by all of us in Athens. We want you to play your part in the achievements of your university.

One problem which you face and which we hope to solve in 1950 is how you can know your university as it is today. An accompanying problem to this one is, how can we inspire all alumni to tell their friends and others about Ohio University and its objectives? Your university today is a medium-sized, high-quality university giving personal education to each student. Its faculty is interested in the intellectual, moral, and physical well being of individual students, as well as in their future careers and achievements. The university is prepared as never before to give quality instruction in many general and professional fields. Widespread knowledge of these conditions is important to all. Such information will lead the right type student to enroll, will aid us in solving our financial problem, will help in the placement of students, and will help this university make its contribution to the cause of human freedom.

In a Changing World

The College of Arts and Sciences

BY DEAN W. S. GAMERTSFELDER

The College of Arts and Sciences (called the Liberal Arts College from 1908 to 1932) had its beginning with the founding of Ohio University, hence it is the oldest of the seven colleges which now comprise the university. Until 1902, when the State Normal College (now the College of Education) was founded, the College of Arts and Sciences was Ohio University.

Like the earliest American colleges—Harvard, Yale, Princeton, and Columbia—it was founded to promote liberal education and to lay a broad foundation for professional training and for informed and responsible citizenship. Emphasis in the beginning was laid upon such studies as Latin, Greek, philosophy, mathematics, history, and the basic natural sciences. Later, when it became clear that American life was to be enriched by the influences of invention, scientific discovery, industry, business, and scientific agriculture, the curriculum was broadened to prepare the student for the fullest possible participation in the changed life of the state and nation. Then it was that the modern languages were added, also economics, political science, psychology, sociology, and geography, as well as courses in the fine arts and commerce, and a new impetus was given to such sciences as chemistry, physics, botany, and zoology. More recently, courses in Russian and Portuguese have been added, also astronomy and geology, as well as courses in human relations. In all, the College now comprises sixteen departments with four related areas of study.

Education to be liberal today must cope with the facts of a changed and changing world, a world in which peoples of various races, nations, languages and vocational interests intermingle in a human society increasingly interdependent through improved means of communication, travel, trade, governmental arrangements, and cultural exchanges. Effective living in such a world requires flexibility in personal equipment and ability to make quick and informed adjustments to a complex social and physical environment. Yet it is recognized today, as by the founding fathers, that effective living in our time calls for integrity of character and refined emotional tastes.

The recent developments in the College have been fourfold. One, in recognition of the importance of oral and written communication, facilities are provided through the Department of English, whereby every student in the university may acquire the ability to express himself in clear, concise and correct English. To achieve this end, the work in Freshman Composition has been revised, a proficiency test in English is required of all students during the sophomore year, and those who fail the test are advised to take remedial courses or to avail themselves of the services of the English clinic until they pass the test. Two, the physical and biological sciences have been revised in content and method of instruction to take account of recent discoveries and new knowledge, as well as better to prepare students for professional studies. Two one-year general education courses in the natural sciences have been introduced: The Physical World, which takes account of physics, chemistry, geology and astronomy; and The Living World, which presents the basic facts and principles of the biological sciences. Both courses are designed for students not interested in scientific specialization, but only in a knowledge of the basic facts, methods and principles in the natural sciences. Three, the social sciences are pointed in content, emphasis, and method of instruction to give the student not only a knowledge of the origin, history, and meaning of the institutions of our civilization, but to prepare the student for active and intelligent participation in the affairs of our economic, political, and moral life. Throughout these social studies, ac-

John Galbreath Gives $50,000 to University

A gift of $50,000 to the Ohio University Fund, Inc., for Ohio University, by John Wilmer Galbreath, '20, a trustee and now vice-chairman of the Board of Trustees of the university, was announced December 31 by President John C. Baker.

Prominent in the real estate business in Ohio and nationally and head of the John W. Galbreath Company, Columbus, the donor of the largest gift ever made to Ohio University was graduated with an A.B. degree from Ohio University in 1920.

While the gift is outright, with no specifications for its use at the present time, except to further the development of the Ohio University Fund as a perpetual establishment for the general good of the institution, it was made with special reference to the late Helen Mauck Galbreath, '19, Mr. Galbreath's wife and the daughter of the prominent Mauck family of Gallipolis.

John Galbreath attended Ohio University 1916-20, with an interval spent in a field artillery unit during World War I. He was first appointed a trustee in 1941 and was re-appointed for seven years in 1946. He is a past national president of the Ohio University Alumni Association and in 1940 was awarded the Association's "Certificate of Merit."

During a varied and active business career, he has been honored with the presidency of the Ohio Real Estate Board and presidency of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. He is a director of the City National Bank & Trust Co., of Columbus, and of the Buckeye Steel Castings Company, and is one of the owners of the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball club. He has served on the State Board of Agriculture, and as a director of the Buckeye State Building & Loan Co., and is a past international president of the Mercator Club, a service organization.

Prominent as a sportsman, Mr. Galbreath is a former captain of the River Ridge polo team, and for years bred thoroughbred racing stock at his Darby Dan horse farm near Columbus. Some of his horses were entered in Kentucky Derbies, Preakness Stakes at Pimlico, Md., and at other leading tracks.

Helen Mauck Galbreath was the daughter of Judge Roscoe J. Mauck, who attended Ohio University in 1888-92 and was awarded an honorary M.A. degree in 1917. Judge of the common pleas court of Galia County and on the Fourth Ohio District Court of Appeals for 25 years, he served as assistant to Attorney General Wade Ellis, and was long a prominent citizen of Gallipolis.

Gerald Galbreath, '11, 2-yr., is a brother of the donor. Joan Galbreath Phillips, a daughter, was graduated from the university in 1946. A son, Daniel Galbreath, is now attending Amherst College.

In turning over the investments to President Baker, Mr. Galbreath said: "As I have often told you, one of the happiest periods of my life was spent on the campus of Ohio University, and it was there I met Helen Mauck who later became my wife."

University Bids Farewell

Don Peden Feted

The university and Athens gave Don Peden a heart-warming sendoff last month as the man who was associated with Ohio University athletics for 26 years prepared to retire to his farm in Keota, Iowa.

University officials, teachers, fellow coaches, alumni, and athletes expressed their esteem and appreciation for the man who has done so much to give Ohio University a sound reputation in the realm of intercollegiate athletics at a four-hour long Peden Farewell Dinner in Lindley Hall, December 13.

Heading the list of some 125 guests was Bob Zuppke, Peden's mentor when, as an Illinois halfback, he was cutting a memorable swath through the Western Conference in the early 1920's. Zuppke, now retired, was the principal speaker and paid high tribute to his former all-conference pupil. From Illinois came also Burt Ingwerson, line coach, to help honor that school's illustrious alumnus.

President John C. Baker headed the university's speakers. The president described the retiring athletic director as "the personification of sanity in athletics."

Other speakers included Head Football Coach Carroll C. Widdoes, who, January 1, succeeded Peden as athletic director and director of physical education; Associate Athletic Director William J. "Dutch" Trautwein; Dr. Blaine Goldsberry, '14, team physician; Dr. David Reese, Mid-American Conference Commissioner; Boyd Chambers, a Peden and Ohio University admirer and Cincinnati businessman and athletic official; Fritz Howell, Ohio Associated Press sports editor, and Ed Sudnick, Cleveland senior, president of Varsity O.

Toastmaster was Brandon T. Grover, '19, assistant to the president, and formerly on the athletic staff with Peden. Dean W. S. Gamertsfelder, of the College of Arts and Sciences and the Graduate College, was chairman of the affair.

The gathering was climaxed with the presentation of gifts to Peden, including a life-membership in the Ohio University Alumni Association.

Peden responded to the tribute heaped upon him by praising others. He praised the "hundreds of kids" he coached here as the "boys who have made my life worth while," adding that he never had coached an Ohio team of which he wasn't proud. He paid tribute to Athens and to the university. He recounted the numerous other jobs he has turned down because "Athens was a nice place for me to live and a good place to raise my kids." He revealed that after his "poorest season" the university gave him the biggest raise he ever received.

"That couldn't happen any place but here," said Peden, who spent his entire professional career at Ohio University.

An Appreciation Banquet staged by townsmen followed a few nights later at the Berry Hotel, at which Peden and his long-time colleague "Dutch" Trautwein were honored.

Characterized as "spontaneous" by Toastmaster H. C. "Jack" Bobo, '19, the affair was arranged by a committee headed by C. B. Nye.

Other members of the committee included Dr. Goldsberry; R. W. Finsterwald, '17, former Bobcat football coach; Dwight H. Rutherford, '26; H. D. Palmer, '16x; Carl H. Ferguson; Richard Banks, '43; Walter R. Davis, '39; Harper C. Pendry; Erle Bridgewater, Jr., '40; Harry Beckley, '10; R. H. White, '20x; P. O. Nichols; Paul Ullmark; Harold E. Wise, '28, former head football coach; Darrell H. Sams, '21; Jack Sweeney; Prof. Don R. Clippinger; Fred Beckler, '08, 2-yr.; Sol Rosenberg, '35x, and Sam Altman.

Peden and Trautwein each were given console Stromberg-Carlson television sets by their friends who gathered to honor them.

The Peden Regime

BY PROF. C. N. MACKINNON

When there is talk of the Peden regime, it is likely to come quickly to the famous team of '29. Nothing could be more natural. That was a group of willing workers, who always gave everything they had and whose abilities were fashioned by inspired leadership into a great scoring machine. Or it may with equal justice turn to the undefeated team of '35, whose record may seem a trifle less glorious only because it came after the team of '29. Second miracles are never quite so impressive as the first. He would be a rash person who ventured to say that the team of '30 was really inferior to that of '29, although one tie score marred an otherwise perfect record.

There are some, though, who will find in Peden's first team, that of '24, the best demonstration of the qualities that have made him a great coach. Its record, four wins and four losses is not spectacular, and man for man it was probably not the equal in ability of the great teams of later years, when the fame of Ohio University's coaching staff was attracting more high-grade players. But one game in that year was enough to win permanently the affectionate regard of old Ohio rooters. Let's turn to the story.

The year before, when Peden was assistant coach, the squad journeyed to Delaware to meet a fine Ohio Wesleyan team. The result was humiliating to us. The score was 40-0 against us and it was evident that it might easily have been double that. At the end of the game the Wesleyan bench was empty, and in the second half the timekeeper let his watch run unchecked. A team with no confidence, knowing they lacked the necessary weapons, went through the motions of playing football.

The next season practically the same squad, now under Peden, went back to meet the same Ohio Wesleyan squad. No neutral critic would have said we had a chance. It was the last game of the season, and the program of the day, ignoring this game, lamented the fact that Ohio Wesleyan and Oberlin would each end its season in the Ohio Conference undefeated and would have to share the championship honors.

But while it was practically the same squad that went from here to Delaware, it was a very different team. It was made up of men who believed in themselves and in their team. They believed they knew how to stop that tricky Wesleyan offense, they believed they could bore through the tough defense. To every one else on the field it was quite clear that Ohio Wesleyan was the better team. Only to the boys in the green jerseys was the fact unclear. They did not know it, and it would not have been quite safe to have suggested it to any of them. From the kick-off they tore in with a magnificent spirit that stopped their opponents cold. Before the first quarter ended, we had scored. At the end of the game an utterly demoralized Ohio Wesleyan team, backed up almost to their own goal line, were fighting, not so much with some last hope of winning as with desperate determination to keep us from scoring again.

The difference between the team of '23 and the one of '24 was not in the personnel of the squads; the difference was Don Peden.

The young coach developed rapidly, and the technique improved. But the fundamentals remained unchanged. His teams in baseball and football were well taught on fundamentals. Physical laziness he would not tolerate; with mental laziness he could be cruel. He never tried to fit a squad to a system. He studied his material and devised systems that would best employ the abilities available. He never employed a "star" system. A Peden team was not a little group of prima donnas with a supporting cast. It was always a team.

He studied individual players, so as to apply to each the treatment which would yield the best results. The treatment went beyond the playing field and outside the area of sports. Many a boy in the twenty-six years has gone to Peden in need of counseling on personal problems. Always the boy found a sympathetic listener, ready to give the problem careful study and to offer wise guidance.

In those private sessions and in the example which he showed at all times on the field, proving that it is possible to combine a magnificent competitive spirit with the code of the gentleman, Don Peden has been more than a great builder of teams. He has been a builder of men.

On and About the Green . . .

A RECORD graduating class is in prospect for 1950 with 341 candidates currently approved for the February 4 Commencement and 757 applications already reported by Registrar Mahn for June. The latter figure is expected to exceed 800 when all applications are in, compared with 734 in June, 1949.

The February group compares with 256 in February, 1949. Previously, the February high was 148 in 1943.

The February Commencement speaker will be Howard Mumford Jones, noted author and educator. Dr. Jones has been professor of English at Harvard since 1936 and was dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences at Harvard in 1943-44.

The February list of 341 candidates, 281 men and 60 women, shows 39 from the College of Applied Science, 76 from the College of Arts and Sciences, 119 from the College of Commerce, 62 from the College of Education, 26 from the College of Fine Arts, and 16 from the Graduate College. Of the total, three candidates will receive two-year diplomas in elective studies from the University College.

REGISTRATION PLANS are set up for an orderly transition into the second half of the 1949-50 academic year, with on-campus and branches enrollment expected to keep the total figure crowding the 6,000 mark.

The record 341 candidates for February graduation will reduce the present on-campus figure, but Director Albert C. Gubitz expects no reduction in the present branches enrollment of 812.

The semester opens on-campus February 6, with counseling, advising, and registration scheduled for that week.

The branches will get off to a slightly earlier start. The director of admissions, registrar, and representatives of the treasurer's office and the Veterans Administration, as well as faculty members, will be at Zanesville January 30, Chillicothe, February 1, and Portsmouth February 3.

Dr. Edman also gave the annual lecture on good teaching. Choosing as his topic "The College Teacher as Humanist," the lecturer told Ohio University teachers that all college teachers must be "humanists." He termed teaching an "art of two things — communications and contagion," and declared that the college teacher is in a position which carries great possibilities and an equally great challenge.

SPECIFICATIONS and designs for the new band uniforms have been sent to manufacturers for bidding, and present plans call for the introduction of the new uniforms when the Symphonic Band gives its annual Spring Concert in April.

Director of Bands Charles E. Gilbert praised highly the individual and group cooperation, on and off the campus, which has made the new uniforms possible.

He reported that the record-albums of Ohio University songs have grossed over $2,500 and that the sale of the albums, carrying Ohio songs done by the Band and Glee Club, is "still going merrily along."

The Varsity Night Show, staged by the Band and the Fine Arts Council, netted over $1,000, with two-thirds going to the Uniform Fund.

Currently, the Ohio University Fund, Inc., has received from alumni $164 earmarked for the Band Uniform Fund.

A recent $1,000 contribution from the Board of Athletic Control virtually guaranteed delivery of at least 85 uniforms to outfit the Symphonic Band this spring. Director Gilbert is confident continued sales of the recordings and other sources will provide funds to field a newly-uniformed 105-piece Marching Band in the fall. Early estimates set $7,000 as the amount needed.

The Symphonic Band will play at the 1950 June Commencement and will also give a special Commencement Concert in Commencement Week, Director Gilbert said.

religious art. The painting, done against a larger green background, is 21 inches wide and 29 inches deep. It shows a large central figure of Buddha surrounded by many smaller figures of his Bodhisattvas, or disciples. The scroll is displayed in the Edwin Watts Chubb Library.

Another teacher of long tenure whose retirement has not been previously reported in the Alumnus is Dr. Edith E. Beechel. Dr. Beechel, professor emerita of education, joined the university faculty in 1923 and resigned in 1949. From 1940 to 1947, she was principal of the University Elementary School. She now lives at Loveland, Colorado.

With the Faculty

■ Dr. John W. Innes, associate professor of economics, will give the second in the 1949-50 series of faculty lectures. His topic will be "Economics and Ethics," with the lecture given in Chemistry Auditorium, Thursday, January 26, at 8 p.m. Dr. Innes joined the Ohio University faculty in 1947. From 1941 to 1947, he served in the National Housing Agency, the Department of Justice, and the War Department.

■ Dean George W. Starcher, '26, of University College, was one of an invited group of college and university representatives who attended a conference sponsored by the U. S. Office of Education and the American Council of Education. The theme of the conference, held in Chicago in December, was the improvement of college teaching. Dean Starcher has recently been named one of three persons in Southeastern Ohio to select candidates for Rotary Foundation Scholarships.

■ Dr. E. B. Smith, professor of government, attended by invitation the Conference on Citizenship sponsored by the Citizenship Clearing House of New York University Law School in Columbus.

■ President Baker and Dr. Gaige B. Paulsen, professor of psychology, have been named to Ohio College Association committees for 1949-50. Dr. Baker is vice-chairman of the Resolutions Committee and Dr. Paulsen is serving on the Technical Research Committee.

■ Dr. H. T. Houff, professor of Philosophy, and Prof. Roger W. Barrett attended the annual meeting of the National Association of Biblical Instructors held in Cincinnati.

Fund Awards Winners Report

The eight recipients of the 1949 Ohio University Fund Scholarship Awards reported interesting and profitable experiences from their visits to plants and laboratories in the fields of their major interests made possible by the Fund Awards.

The awards are presented annually to outstanding seniors by the Ohio University Fund, Inc., in the interest of better scholarship at the university. They were first presented in 1947. The winners are not selected on the basis of high grades alone. In the words of the Committee on Encouragement of Scholarship, which makes the selections from nominations by teachers, "the test of real scholarship is the display of intellectual curiosity and an eagerness to go beyond the routine of classroom work."

The 1949 winners were Paul Bashford, Athens; Michael Dodak, Lakewood; Wilmer S. Goff, Steubenville; Kathryn Gottshall, Alliance; Eleanor Morgan, Ironton; Robert D. Peel, Newark; Bernard H. Osterhage, Lancaster; Donald H. Schuster, Bellevue.

Mr. Bashford, now research engineer, graphic arts, for the MeBee Co. in Athens, visited the R. R. Donnelly Printing Co. in Chicago, printers of Time, Life and Fortune for the Chicago region, Sears and Ward's catalogues, and numerous major trade journals. Mr. Bashford was a mathematics major.

Mr. Dodak, engineering major, and Mr. Schuster, physics, visited the General Electric plant at Syracuse, N. Y., and the Bell laboratories at Murray Hill, N. J. Mr. Dodak is now a graduate assistant working on his master's degree at Stanford University. Mr. Schuster, who received a National Research Council Fellowship, is studying for his doctorate in biophysics at the University of Minnesota.

Miss Gottshall and Miss Morgan remained at their alma mater for graduate work. The former, a graduate assistant in the School of Dramatic Art and Speech, used her Fund Award to attend a speech education conference at Pennsylvania State College. At the conference, Miss Gottshall, who is majoring in speech correction, was enabled to participate in lectures and discussions given or led by leading authorities in her field.

Miss Morgan, a graduate assistant in botany, visited the Shaw School of Botany at Washington University in St. Louis. Her tour of the school's laboratories and 75-acre botanical gardens was personally conducted by the school's Dr. Henry N. Andrews. She also visited the famed St. Louis Zoological Gardens.

Mr. Osterhage and Mr. Peel, with major interests in botany and agriculture, respectively, visited the U. S. Department of Agriculture Experimental Station at Beltsville, Md. Escorted by station personnel, they made a three-day tour through all divisions of the station.

Mr. Osterhage is now at the University of Wisconsin working toward a Ph.D. in plant pathology, under the guidance of Dr. A. J. Riker, internationally known plant pathologist. After graduation, Mr. Peel joined his father and brother in the operation of their large farm near Newark.

Mr. Goff, a photography major, has not completed plans for using his award. He recently joined Art Bean, '49, on the photography staff of The Columbus Dispatch.

Alumnus Reports Important Research Discoveries

Dr. J. F. Bateman, '22, superintendent of the Columbus State Hospital, recently released research findings

DR. AND MRS. J. F. BATEMAN

which promise to be highly significant in scientific thinking about dementia praecox—the nation's most prevalent type of insanity. The research was conducted in conjunction with Dr. James W. Papez, of Cornell University, over a period of three years.

In essence, the researchers found that the disease is caused by abnormal growth within the brain nerve cells. This abnormal growth was found to be protein bodies never before described in the brain nerve cells of dementia praecox patients. The more protein bodies, the more the patient was deranged, Dr. Bateman said. He described three stages in the destruction of the nerve cells, each stage corresponding to a growth in derangement and in the number of protein inclusions.

Discovery that dementia praecox, which accounts for 52 per cent of all patients in United States mental hospitals, is not caused by environment or abnormal conditions at birth may revolutionize scientific thinking on the disease, Dr. Bateman said.

Although explaining that their conclusions must be further tested with additional research, Dr. Bateman said that "we feel definitely that we are advancing in the direction of discovering beyond any question certain metabolic changes in the nerve cell which will prove to be causative factors in some of our most common types of mental disease."

The study was made on the first living brain cells ever used in research on dementia praecox. The specimens were obtained from 70 patients on which brain operations were performed as curative measures. The protein bodies, brought to light by a

First Campus FM in Ohio

WOUI Officially Aired

The first building of the first university in the Northwest Territory was the scene of the first licensed broadcast by a college-operated FM radio station in Ohio December 13 when a special program originating from the president's office in Cutler Hall launched regular programming by Ohio University's WOUI.

Featuring the initial official program was a talk by Theodore Streibert, president of Station WOR in New York City and vice chairman of the executive board of directors of the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Mr. Streibert was a guest of the university for the opening of the station and also guest-lectured several radio classes. He praised highly the university's program in instruction for radio careers and the work of the radio students.

The new station, licensed by the Federal Communications Commission for educational purposes, has been undergoing programming tests for several weeks, including broadcasts of away-from-home football games, home basketball games, and several student-directed and produced programs.

Prof. Vincent Jukes, '30, associate professor of dramatic art and speech, was master of ceremonies for the first official program, which included talks by Mr. Streibert, President Baker, Trustee Gordon K. Bush, '24, Dr. Earl C. Seigfred, dean of the College of Fine Arts, Dr. Claude E. Kantner, director of the School of Dramatic Art and Speech, and William R. Mnich, senior from Cleveland, who is station manager. Professor Jukes is faculty supervisor of the station.

Present equipment and studio facilities are housed in a campus quonset hut, which also houses the university's wired radio WOUN, but new quarters are planned for both stations in the new Fine Arts Building now under construction.

The initial broadcast period included segments of various programs to be aired regularly in the future, culminating with a request program from 11:15 p.m. to midnight. The regular broadcast schedule will be from noon to 1 p.m. and from 6 to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, noon hour on Fridays, and special broadcasts of all home athletic games and other special events. WOUI operates at 88.1 megacycles.

Both WOUI and the wired WOUN serve as laboratories for radio students, who carry out all production and directing duties as part of their work, airing short plays, news and sports, requests and many special events.

NEW FINE ARTS BUILDING

... scheduled for Fall of 1951

Work is progressing through the winter months on Ohio University's new Fine Arts Building, the last-to-be-completed project in the $2,500,000 building program now underway.

The fall of 1951 has been named as a tentative completion date for the approximately $850,000 structure which was begun in the spring of 1949. The other projects in the program are completed or nearing completion.

The new Health Center opened its facilities when school was resumed after the Christmas holidays. Also completed is the addition to the university power plant. An addition to the Men's Dorm, to house 200 more students, is expected to be ready at the beginning of the second semester in February. Opening of the new Natatorium is scheduled for April.

The Bobcat Sports Review

By VIC SHEROW, '29

SPORTS at Ohio University are in the Christmas Holiday lull as this is written. The big recent development in the local sports picture is, of course, the retirement of Don C. Peden and the appointment of Carroll C. Widdoes, head football coach since last March, as director of athletics and director of the department of physical education. The appointment, effective January 1, was announced by President Baker December 16.

Peden retired after 26 years association with the university as football coach and director of athletics and physical education.

The Widdoes appointment means that for the first time since early 1947 the athletic director also will be head football coach, a dual post held by Peden from 1937 until his resignation as football coach in 1947.

In his first year as coach of the Bobcat gridders, Widdoes marked up four wins, four losses, and one tie.

At a banquet co-honoring himself and W. J. "Dutch" Trautwein last month, Peden paid tribute to his successor with the statement that the university's athletic fortunes are in good hands.

"Dutch" Trautwein, who resigned as head basketball coach several weeks ago on his doctor's orders, will continue as associate director of athletics.

THE BOBCAT basketball story isn't a pleasant one, but neither is it a tale of complete gloom. Barely discernible, perhaps, but there nevertheless, rimming the dark cloud presently covering Ohio University cage hopes, is the proverbial silver lining.

The dark cloud three losses in four starts, as hostilities ceased for the Christmas Holiday.

A 57 to 40 stinging by Marietta's Pioneers started the season. Then, giving their followers a promise of better things to come, the Bobcats gallantly smote the invading Bishops of Ohio Wesleyan 74 to 56. Then a two-day stand in Northeastern Ohio, December 17 and 19, saw the Bobcats outscored twice, a 52 to 39 loss to the precisionists of Mount Union and a 70 to 57 defeat by Kent State's sharpshooters.

The silver lining—the hope-building factors that don't show in the scorer's book. In the scorer's book the Bobcats haven't been impressive, but the whole story isn't to be found there. Not showing, for instance, is the terrific try that has been a part of all the Bobcats' efforts so far. Not evidenced by the record is the fact that quite often Coach Jimmy Snyder, '41, has five sophomores on the floor, and always three or four of the first-year varsity men are in the Bobcat lineup.

The won and lost figures don't show that somewhere in the dozen or so top-notch basketball prospects of Coach Snyder there is a happy combination which observers feel is bound to click in the not-too-distant future.

Their inexperience has been the Bobcats' major weakness to date. They haven't shown the coolness under pressure that is necessary to hold slim leads, coolness that is gained from combat. In their shooting from the floor and from the free-throw line the Bobcats have marked up a respectable percentage of hits.

Coach Snyder, in his initial year as head coach, has substituted liberally, with the box score of each game listing ten or more names. It's tough at this point to try to single out any one or two or three individuals as stars of the current squad. Guard Glen Hursey, from Glenford, is showing plenty of promise of living up to the bright basketball future forecast for him. Other sophomores accounting for that silver-lining mentioned above are Elwood Sparks, Portsmouth guard; Centers Vic Polosky, Canton, and Joe Benich, Cleveland; Forwards Dave Leightenheimer, Portsmouth, and Jack Betts, East Liverpool.

This season's Bobcat cage squad is predominantly a sophomore outfit, with but a sprinkling of one and two year veterans remaining. Among them are Seniors Phil McKown, Wooster, and Charley Renner, Bolivar, both forwards, and John Lepp, Akron, a guard; Center Lec Williams, Portsmouth, a junior, and Bob Luecke, a junior from Ft. new microscopic stain developed by Dr. Papez, were previously thought to be mere fatty material, said Dr. Bateman.

Long eminent in his field, Dr. Bateman was named head of the Columbus State Hospital in 1937. He was given a leave of absence to become State Commissioner of Mental Diseases in 1938.

Explaining that he preferred being "nearer the practical, rather than the administrative, side" of his work, he resigned in 1940 and returned to the hospital position. From 1927 to 1934, he was assistant superintendent and clinical director at the Longview Hospital in Cincinnati.

As an undergraduate at Ohio University, Dr. Bateman was an assistant to Prof. F. B. Gullum in chemistry. He attended the medical colleges of Cincinnati and Cornell and also taught at Cornell two years. He also did postgraduate work at Northwestern University.

Mrs. Bateman is the former Natalie S. Bryan, '22.

FINE ARTS BUILDING

A three-story with basement structure, the Fine Arts Building will be of Colonial-style design, including a tower, to fit in with the architectural scheme of recent university construction and renovation. It will front on College St. and be constructed of brick and reinforced concrete.

The basement will house stage equipment, dressing rooms, mechanical equipment, and provide quarters for the university's radio stations WOUN, the campus-wide station, and WOUI, the recently launched FM station.

The first floor of the building, with emphasis on the dramatic arts, will provide for a main stage and auditorium, the latter seating 300. Plans also call for a rehearsal stage and a smaller auditorium. The rest of the first floor will be used up by a lobby, offices, and classrooms.

On the second floor, the speech department will be provided with speech cubicles for clinical work, recording rooms, classrooms, and offices. The upper part of the stages and auditoriums will extend through the second and third floors. The classrooms and offices scheme will be repeated on the third floor surrounding the well of the theater.

count is taken of the fact that the democratic way of life as understood in America is being challenged by various "isms," some falsely claiming to be the true democracy, and a serious effort is made to develop in the student a sound appreciation of the traditional American belief in the worth of the individual, and of liberty and justice for all. Four, in recognition of the fact that the most acute problems of society today exist in the area of human relations—in the family, school, church, industry, labor organizations, government, and between races and nations—and that new knowledge and techniques in human relations are required to resolve these conflicts, several courses in psychology and in the Department of Human Relations have been developed. The case method of instruction has been introduced to supplement the usual lecture-discussion procedure.

The College of Arts and Sciences remains today, as in the past, a service college to the entire university. Its courses are open to the students of other colleges, and its students are free to elect courses in other colleges. Its faculty of 112 members gives instruction in 581 courses to the 850 students enrolled in the college, as well as to the several thousand students who are enrolled in the other colleges. The Bachelor of Arts degree, first offered in 1813, continues to be the favored degree. The Bachelor of Science degree has been offered since 1877, and the Bachelor of Science in Chemistry degree has been offered since 1943.

The stations serve the schools of dramatic art and speech, journalism, music, and the department of engineering. Dr. D. B. Green of the latter department was in charge of the installation of the $2,000 worth of FM equipment placed in the station last summer.

Instruction in radio was started at Ohio University in 1938, with five students enrolled in a radio play production class under Professor Jukes. Today there are 30 students enrolled in the play production class, with 258 students taking the 11 radio courses now offered by a faculty of five. Radio also offers a major curriculum for master degree candidates. In the College of Fine Arts 41 stu-

DANIEL LINDLEY BIOGRAPHY

COMES OFF LONDON PRESS

A book of interest to Ohio University was recently published by the Epworth Press in London.

"The Life and Times of Daniel Lindley," by Edwin W. Smith, is an interesting and thorough account of an inspirational and full life. The Daniel Lindley the book deals with is, of course, the Daniel Lindley of early Ohio University history, son of Jacob Lindley, who, at the recommendation of Rufus Putnam, was named to head the infant university in 1808.

Daniel was graduated from the university in 1824, and in 1860 it conferred upon him, in apt appreciation of an illustrious career of one of its sons, the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Biographer Smith deals principally with the mature life and times of Daniel Lindley, missionary to South Africa. Even so, the relatively few pages he devotes to the early years and background of his hero must be given more than incidental importance. The formative, molding years of Daniel Lindley, years spent in frontier Athens and under the influence of the academic pioneers of the university, must have played their part in determining the complete and admirable Daniel Lindley of maturity.

As a missionary to the natives of South Africa and, for an interim period, as a pastor to the Boers, he gained an esteem that has been lasting. Lindley is credited with being the founder of the Dutch Reformed Church in Natal, Orange Free State, and Transvaal. A town in the Orange Free State bears his name. South African Airlines named one of its planes "Daniel Lindley" in line with its policy of christening its ships in honor of great personages of South African history.

Among people who were interested in what he was doing and "were more than anxious to help," the author, an Englishman born in South Africa, named Prof. Thomas N. Hoover, retired professor of history at Ohio University, whom he interviewed and who gave him material when he visited Athens in 1941.

A copy of the book has been placed in the Edwin Watts Chubb Library by Anna Pearl McVay, '02, of near Athens, a Lindley descendant.

Students are majoring in radio, in addition to those journalism students majoring in radio journalism.

Honorary Membership Voted Peden

Honorary membership in the Ohio University Alumni Association was voted to Don C. Peden by the officers and executive committeemen of the alumni organization and notification of the action given by letter (see center of page) to the now retired athletic director at a university dinner in his honor on December 13.

Off the campus—in the organized centers—alumni have been carrying on a mid-winter program with even more than usual success.

Youngstown Women

On November 19, the Ohio University Women's Club of Youngstown enjoyed a play by the Rayen Thespians under the direction of Lucille Lee, '29, a member of the faculty of Rayen School. Mrs. Anne Bellan Mitchell, '42, was the November program chairman.

Gertrude Maier, '23, was hostess, December 9, to the first of a series of benefit bridge parties which will be held to make money for the club's annual contribution to the O.U. Student Loan Fund. Miss Maier's guests played "crazy bridge," moving after every other hand, so that all might become well acquainted. The party was acclaimed a huge success.

A "Fun With Games" party, for the entire club, is scheduled for January 29. Plans are being made by a committee headed by Jane Saunders, '43. Isabel Bacon, '19, is the club president.

Youngstown Mothers

The Ohio University Mothers' Club of Youngstown, an active group whose meetings have not hitherto been reported in The Alumnus, will have the "dads" as special guests at a dinner on February 15. There will be a speaker from the campus. Mrs. George England, 2351 Mt. Vernon Ave., is the club president.

Cleveland Bobcats

A decided social success was the annual Christmas Dance held in the Grand Ballroom of the Allerton Hotel in Cleveland, December 29, under the sponsorship of the Cleveland Bobcat Club. Ralph C. Frey, '39, was chairman of the hard-working dance committee.

Cleveland's top-notch dance band,

Bob Patti's, provided music for a program that included group singing of college songs and the awarding of a plaque to Edward A. Sudnick, Cleveland senior and Varsity "O" man. The inscription on the plaque read: "Ed Sudnick—for outstanding athletic performance and campus citizen-

Mr. Don C. Peden
Ohio University
Athens, Ohio

Dear Don:

On behalf of myself and the thousands of Ohio University alumni throughout the nation, I want to attempt to express the deep satisfaction we have had in your highly successful career as a coach and athletic director at our alma mater.

The record books are filled with stories of the successes of your teams on the gridiron and on the diamond. In all of these we take pride. Equally gratifying have been the high standards of athletic competition and participation which you have established—standards that reflect credit not only upon the university but upon each of us.

As an evidence of appreciation of your excellent work, I am directed by the officers of the Ohio University Alumni Association to inform you that you have been elected to Honorary Membership in this official organization of graduates and former students.

I hope that the years ahead will be filled with pleasant memories of Ohio University and its alumni.

Very sincerely yours,

Clark E. Williams
Alumni Secretary

ship at Ohio U.—1949—The Cleveland Bobcat Club."

The awarding of a similar plaque is to be made an annual tradition. The club has been awarding a $25 cash prize to a freshman boy on Honors Day at Ohio University each year for several years.

The next meeting of the club will be a dinner at the Cleveland Athletic Club, January 17, with Head Coach Carroll Widdoes and his staff as special guests.

Cleveland Women

The spring months will see a lot of activity on the part of the members of the Ohio University Women's Club of Cleveland. Their meeting-a-month calendar calls for a luncheon, January 14, at Higbee's Lounge, with entertainment to be provided by the Cleveland Playhouse.

At an informal tea and musicale at Higbee's on February 11, the Higbee Company will stage a Spring Fashion Show.

On March 16, at the University Club, the alumnae will join the Bobcats at dinner, with President John C. Baker as the honor guest and speaker.

Mrs. Bette Parge Gober, '41, is the club's current president.

Cincinnati Bobcats

The beautiful Rookwood Room of the Hotel Sinton was the scene, December 6, of a dinner and reception for President Baker of the university. Ohio University women of the Cincinnati area joined the men of the Bobcat Club for this delightful affair. The toastmaster for the dinner program was Edward B. Wright, '38, club president. Among the special guests were T. J. Davis, prominent Cincinnati banker and O.U. trustee, and Mrs. Davis.

Enthusiasm was expressed by the ladies present for a re-establishment of the Ohio University Women's Club that ceased activities during the war years.

President Baker was accompanied by Dr. Rush Elliott, '24, chairman of Ohio University's department of Zoology.

Indianapolis

Conflicting engagements involving several key members of the group resulted in a relatively small attendance of the meeting of Indianapolis alumni on November 11. An Armistice Day suspension of mail delivery resulted in failure of a reel of campus movies to arrive in time for program purposes, thus adding to the distress of officers of the Hoosier chapter.

Plans for a get-together on February 4, when the Ohio U. Bobcats will be in the Indiana capital for a basketball game with the fast-stepping Butler five, are in the making.

Mrs. Juanita Dillow Compton, '36, is acting president, and Mrs. Betty Ong Jordan, '34, secretary, of the Indianapolisians.

Other Meetings

Reports of recent alumni meetings in Dayton, Los Angeles, and San Francisco will appear in the February issue.

Here and There Among the Alumni

Although not a member of the class, none of the '99'ers who returned to celebrate the 50th anniversary of their graduation at Commencement last June had a more enjoyable time than Miss Lulu C. King (see picture with Ohio University's President Baker), of Atlanta, Ga. Miss King, a voice instructor at Ohio University, 1895-99, and still prominent and active as a voice teacher and writer in the southern city, came back especially to be with DR. NEWMAN H. BENNETT, Pittsburgh, Pa., at the time of the latter's class reunion. Once teacher and student, Miss King and Dr. Bennett went together to what used to be the "college chapel" in the Fine Arts Building, where, to Miss King's accompaniment, the Pittsburgh physician sang the song that he had sung on his graduation day some 50 years previously.

1907

Mrs. Alex Torrance (ALLIE MCGEE, 2-yr.) is in her 40th year of teaching, all in Middletown and 36 years at Sherman School. Mrs. Torrance is the mother of Mrs. Philip Berg (NELLIE TORRANCE, '34), Little Neck, L.I., N.Y.

1908

DR. O. C. STINE, to whom international conferences are no novelty, was the U.S. delegate to the International Agricultural Economics Conference held in Stresa, Italy, last summer. He also attended the International Income Conference in Cambridge, England, during a two-months European visit. Dr. Stine is head agricultural economist and assistant chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

1910

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore F. Sellers (HILLEN AYERS, 2-yr.) are the parents of a son, David, who is now a junior at Baldwin-Wallace College. David's instructor in a course in Shakespeare is PROF. HARRY L. RIDENOUR, '12. Mrs. Sellers and Mrs. Evans (see Class of 1912 notes) are sisters.

1912

Deep-sea fishing off the Florida coast or salmon fishing in Oregon are twin temptations to which FRED S. WHEATON (see picture) and Mrs. Wheaton (NELLI WALTERS, '28) offer little resistance. Equipped with a house trailer and a small, but sturdy, boat, these two Athenians head for the northwest in the summer time and for the southeast when the local winters get too rugged. Both are expert fishermen, catching Columbia River salmon last summer up to 35 pounds in weight. One day they got a chunk of ice some 500,000 years old. It had broken off the Columbia Glacier, which is said to have formed in the Second Ice Age. Mr.

Wheaton, now retired, was for many years head of the Wheaton Hardware Co. in Athens.

Mrs. George E. Evans (ETTA AYERS) who has been ill at Mercy Hospital, Mt. Vernon, is now back in her home in Utica. Mrs. Evans is a former resident of Gambier and of Mt. Vernon.

Mrs. Eleanor Martin Cressy, wife of

PRESIDENT BAKER AND MISS LULU KING
(See Class of 1899 Notes)

CLYDE K. CRESSY, 2-yr., died November 1 in Silver Spring, Md., as a result of a brain tumor. She had been ill for several months. The husband returned to Washington last May after having served as director of personnel for the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation in Columbus for a three-year period. Prior to that, with the rank of lieutenant colonel, he had been attached to the Adjutant General's Department at the Pentagon Building in the nation's capital.

1914

The November number of the Harvard Business Review carried an article, "National Association of Securities Dealers," by DR. HOMER V. CHERRINGTON, A.B. '14, B.S.Ed. '16, professor of finance at Northwestern University. The article appraised the experiment in self-regulation of the over-the-counter securities market and covered many problems in the investment field. Dr. Cherrington acquired A.M. degrees at both the University of Michigan and Harvard, and was awarded a Ph.D. degree by the latter institution. He taught at Ohio University and at the University of Iowa before going to Northwestern in 1945.

For six years a successful high school athletic coach in Ypsilanti, Mich., and for 17 years teacher training director of vocational agriculture at Michigan State College, East Lansing, BRANSON A. WALPOLE (see picture) was forced by a heart ailment to give up his teaching, writing and lecturing career in 1938 and retire to a farm near Jonesville, Mich. As an educator and as service director of the National Exchange Club, the Michigan man had lectured in 32 states and had written six books at the time of his retirement from college work. Meanwhile, despite subsequent coronary attacks (he spent 21 weeks in bed during 1949) he developed a fruit and Christmas tree farm on which he now has 40 acres of apple trees, 70,000 white spruce trees, 125 colonies of bees, 2 acres of raspberries, an acre of strawberries, and other fruit trees. While at Ypsilanti, in 1915, he organized the first chapter of Future Farmers of America in the U. S. and is officially credited with the honor in state and national records. Married to the former HELLEN "PEGGY" LAWTON, '13x, he and Mrs. Walpole are the parents of four daughters, one a graduate of Michigan State, two, graduates of the University of Michigan, and the fourth a senior in the latter school.

Salaries of Ohio public school teachers are increasing, but still lag considerably behind wages paid carpenters, highway workers, bus drivers, and other occupations not requiring extensive college training, the Ohio Education Association reported at its 28th annual meeting in Columbus last month. MERRILL F. COOLEY of Harding High School, Warren, and president of the Educational Council of the Ohio Education Association, submitted the group's research report to the more than 1000 delegates.

DR. ERNEST R. WOOD, A.B., '16, B.S.Ed., '17, professor of education at New York University, and KENNETH G. RAY, A.M., '31, Columbus and McConnelsville, a former state director of education in Ohio, are cooperating in the production of a series of arithmetic textbooks for grade school use. A Columbus newspaper referred to them as "another 'Ray's Arithmetic' that is reminiscent of the historic series which was in nationwide use prior to the turn of the century." The co-authors hope to develop the series to include volumes that will match the "Ray's Higher Arithmetic," a book that ranked educationally with the famed "McGuffey Readers." The new books are "arithmetic applied to every day problems." A feature is that a third of each volume, after the first, is devoted to a review of the preceding book. Mr. Ray recently has announced that he will seek the Republican nomination for state treasurer. He served in the state legislature from his native Morgan County for two terms, starting in 1929, and is now education director of the Grolier Publishing Company of New York.

Mrs. BERTHA LIVELY ELLINGER, education supervisor of the Alaska Native

Service, in Juneau, writes that "in Alaska, one meets home folks quite often and unexpectedly." She then reported having found a news story about DR. EDWARD H. DUNN, '39, in the Daily Alaska Empire. The Juneau paper described Dr. Dunn's current medical activities, for a reference to which see the Class of 1939 notes. Mrs. Ellinger missed Dean Irma Voigt and Dr. Edith Ray during their Alaskan visit last summer because she was in the States at that time.

DR. O. C. JACKSON, a Woodsfield physician and civic leader, with Mrs. Jackson attended Ohio University Commencement affairs last June. It was Dr. Jackson's first Commencement since his own, in 1917, and he reports that Dean Emeritus Edwin Watts Chubb was the only man he saw whom he knew. He stated that there had been very little change in the retired dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, but that he noted many changes about the campus.

1918

F. ERNEST BOLTON, a chemist and sales manager with the huge du Pont interests in Wilmington, Del., acquired a new son-in-law on September 3, when his daughter, Frances, married an ex-Marine of Barneveld, N. Y., and a new granddaughter, November 8, born to another daughter, Janet, in Honolulu. The new arrival's father is a captain in the Army Medical Corps on the staff of the Troopier General Hospital.

Mrs. D. F. Keller (MARIE RICHTER, 2-yr.), is a frequent visitor to Ohio University where a son, David, is a senior in the School of Journalism. Another son, Waldo, was enrolled as a pre-medical student in 1947 but is now at Ohio State University. Last August, Mrs. Keller and three of her campus contemporaries enjoyed a reunion at the Keller cottage at Hamilton Lake, Indiana. It had been 26 years since they had all been together. Besides Mrs. Keller, the reunioners were her Lindley Hall roommate, FRIEDA CHAPMAN, '22, Youngstown; DR. EDNA ARUNDEL, '21, Greensboro, N. C.; and ETTA CARTER, '18, Marion. Mrs. Keller's home is in Hicksville where her husband is a physician.

1919

Herbert R. Young, associate professor of English at Case Institute of Technology and Mrs. Young (RUTH HARTLEY, 2-yr.),

MR. AND MRS. FRED S. WHEATON
(See Class of 1912 Notes)

Cleveland, are the parents of an Ohio University commerce senior, GORDON YOUNG. Gordon is married and has two children, Kathy Ann and Nancy Lee. The Youngs have another son, Hewitt, also married and the father of one child.

1920

James Norcross Trone, a medical student at Johns Hopkins University and a son of WILLIAM A. TRONE and Mrs. Trone (ONETA NORCROSS, '21), of Forest Hills, L. I., N. Y., spent the 1949 summer months with WALTER J. SHAPTER, '21x, and Mrs. Shapter (MARGARET DURRETT, '19) in Columbus. Jim was kept busy as a carpenter for Mr. Shapter in the latter's extensive home building business and in caring for his host's polo ponies at the Shapter summer residence at Harbor Hills.

1921

DR. EDNA ARUNDEL, head of the geography department at the Women's College of the University of North Carolina in Greensboro, was advanced to a full professorship last June. Miss Arundel received her Ph.D. degree at Yale University in 1942. Her A.M. came from Columbia in 1929. Concerning that interesting reunion referred to in the Class of 1918 notes, Dr. Arundel says "we talked ourselves weak concerning the past, present and future of Ohio University."

Commuting is no great problem for one Ohio University co-ed. She daily rides a motorcycle from her home in Chesterhill, 22 miles distant, to the Ohio University campus. The young lady is Mary Lois Whitacre, a daughter of DR. A. H. WHITACRE, a Chesterhill physician, and Mrs. Whitacre (LENA MAE SAMS, '21).

RUTH C. DUNCAN, 2-yr., a teacher in Youngstown's Bancroft School, is the recently elected corresponding secretary of the Ohio branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

1923

The H.WESCOTT ROACH SCHOLARSHIP has been established by MRS. HELEN HEDDEN ROACH, '36, assistant professor of voice at Ohio U., in honor of her late husband who was a member of the Class of '23. The scholarship will consist of the income from \$1,000 that has been invested in the irreducible debt of the State of Ohio. The \$60, representing  $\frac{2}{3}$  of the registration fees for a student for two semesters, will be awarded annually to a music student by the director of the School of Music and the dean of the College of Fine Arts.

A new book, "Near East Panorama," authored by DR. GLORA M. WYSNER, secretary of the International Missionary Council in New York City, is due to come off the press in March. Dr. Wysner, who has written other books based upon her experiences with Moslem tribes in North Africa, was for five years a special consultant on Moslem relations for the Foreign Missions Conference of North America.

1924

HELEN I. PICKREL is director of social service at the State Hospital at Apple Creek. The institution has recently opened a beautiful new building. Miss Pickrel, who travels extensively, maintains an apartment in Columbus where she spends most of her weekends.

1925

Jack and Joe Winkler, sons of JOHN H. WINKLER, played fullback and right-half, respectively, on a very successful Hillard High School gridiron team last fall. Their team was champion of the Franklin County League in 1948. The father, attorney for the Farm Bureau Insurance Company in Columbus, is president of Ohio University's Franklin County alumni chapter.

1926

CHESTER L. WYCKOFF is no longer Chester Wyckoff, but is LAWRENCE C. WYCKOFF, confusing as it may sound and be. The Columbus man recently had occasion to seek a birth certificate and found that the records in the Vinton County Court House stated that he was born Lawrence Chester Wyckoff. The original records had been partially destroyed by fire and his first and middle names transcribed in reverse order. The court record could not be changed, so it was necessary for Chet's father and older brother to make a sworn statement "to the effect that I was one and the same person."

ALICE DeCAMP, instructor in French, Spanish, and English in her home high school in Moundsville, W. Va., spent last summer at West Virginia University taking advanced courses in her foreign language specialties.

1927

After describing the public school system of Alexandria, Va., as one of the best in the country, the Alexandria Gazette published a series of articles dealing with various leaders in the school administration. One article was devoted to ALBERT E. "BUD" DORAN, director of the physical education, health and athletic program, whom it called "perhaps the most popular and best known school official in the city." He went to Alexandria in 1938 from Staunton where he had achieved success as a coach and athletic director. During his 11 years in Staunton, Doran coached teams that were runner-up in the state in football, won the state basketball crown twice, and the district basketball title six times. In Alexandria, his basketball teams won the state title once, were runners-up four times, and claimed the district title seven consecutive years. A year ago, JAMES B. BRYAN, '40, basketball coach at Lynchburg, and Al coached two undefeated teams through their regular seasons and met in the finals for the Virginia Class A championship. Lynchburg won. Doran coached Jimmy in Staunton High School and sent him to Ohio University. It was a case of the student besting the teacher.

WILLIAM J. MANNING

ANNE SAUM, former director of staff training for R. H. Macy & Company, Inc., New York City, and who now has her own business in the big city as a training consultant and personnel counselor, is a onetime supervisor of Ohio University's Service Bureau. Miss Saum reports that on a recent visit to Colgate University she got "a great thrill out of seeing the lovely portrait of Dr. E. B. Bryan which hangs in the dining hall of the Student Union Building." Dr. Bryan was the 11th president of Ohio University, serving from 1921 to 1934, dying in office in the latter year. He was president of Colgate University before coming to Ohio University.

CLARENCE E. SWACKHAMER has been named head track coach at Euclid High School where he has been a teacher and coach for a number of years. He entered the Euclid school system in 1926, but has been out of athletics for the past two years. A Cleveland newspaper recently reported his purchase of a $24,000 home in Bratenahl, a Cleveland suburb.

Mrs. Clyde I. Stafford (FRANCIS SMITH - see picture), wife of an Oxford physician, has been appointed to a three-year term as national supervisor for expansion of Theta Sigma Upsilon sorority. She attended a meeting of the National Council in Cleveland near the year's end. Mrs. Stafford hopes to see an early re-establishment of the sorority's Lambda chapter on the Ohio U. campus. Besides the new baby, whose arrival is reported on page 22, the Staffords have two older children, Jack and Marcia.

After three years in Japan with the Far East Command, SGT. ERCELL H. GREENLEE is now with the Women's Army Corps Detachment at Camp Stoneman, Calif.

MARTHA L. GAMBLE is a teacher in the Montclair (N.J.) Academy for Boys and former head mistress of a boys' school in Caldwell, N. J. An expert on school curricula for children, Miss Gamble lectures on "Creative Supervision" and "Library-Building for Children under 12." She is also working on her second edition of poems for children.

The REV. CARROLL H. KITTS and Mrs. KITTS (HELLEN MARTIN, '30) are residents of Long Beach, Calif., where the former is assistant minister of the First Presbyterian Church. Reverend Kitts is a former minister of the Presbyterian Church in West Carrollton, Ohio, and of the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Dayton. ROBERT M. CLINGAN, '40x, and Mrs. Clingan (SARAH LEE PATTON, '43) who have recently moved into a new home in Long Beach, are members of Reverend Kitts' church. Mr. Clingan is manager of the Aeromatic Products Company in Los Angeles.

Julia Glass, daughter of CICIL E. GLASS, McConnellsville hardware dealer, and Mrs. Glass (HILDA ARCHER, '27), is enrolled in her parents' alma mater on a scholarship awarded for highest scholastic ranking in her Malta-McConnellsville High School class and for top ranking in the Senior Scholarship Test in Morgan County. Julia is majoring in music.

By arranging weeks in advance, Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Schneider (EVELYN MCKINLEY, 2-yr.) of Houston, Texas, were able to enjoy a reunion in Columbus on September 2 with Mr. and Mrs. Kieth Ferguson (HOPE McCALLIN, '31) of Buenos Aires, Argentina. Mr. Schneider and his twin brother head the Schneider Construction Company which engages in general contracting. Carl is president of the Houston chapter of the Association of General Contractors of America, while his father is state president of the West Virginia chapter of A.G.C.A. Mr. Ferguson is associated with the Colgate-Palmolive Peet Company. The wives were classmates and sorority sisters at Ohio University.

BERNARD E. HUGHES, former professor of health at Colorado State Teachers College, Greeley, and previously on the faculty of the University of Colorado and New York University, is now school health consultant for the New York State Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health of the State Charities Aid Association in New York City. He is married, has two sons and a daughter, and lives in suburban Gilboa, N. Y.

LUCILE E. SMITH is home editor of

MRS. CLYDE I. STAFFORD
(See Class of 1928 Notes)

Capper's Farmer in Topeka, Kan. She has been with Capper's Publications, Inc., for 10 years, the last two in Kansas.

1931

DOROTHEA GULAT, 2-yr., has resigned her position as supervising teacher in the Fostoria city schools and bought an interest in the Young and Schade Office Supply and Gift Store in Port Clinton. The store is located in Port Clinton's Island Hotel.

1932

LUREN C. BROWN, A.B. '32, A.M. '36, in her third year as a member of the Ohio University faculty, is an instructor in English and assistant director of English Composition. She has previously taught in high schools in Gallipolis and Lancaster.

1933

WILLIAM J. E. MYERS is an instructor in commercial subjects in the high school in Frederick, Md. For two years after graduation, he taught in McKinley High School, Canton, and for the next seven years in the high school in Bellare. Following three years of military service, he taught for one year in Bliss Business College, Columbus, following that with one year as office manager and accountant for the Columbus Bureau of Medical Economics. He is married and has two children.

Among the several thousand Home-comers in Ohio Stadium this past fall were DEVRE L. SHEESLEY, his wife, and three children. Mr. Sheesley is treasurer and comptroller, as well as a member of the board of directors, of Brockway Glass Co., Inc., in Brockway, Pa. Before going to Brockway a little over a year ago, he had spent some 15 years in C.P.A. work, more recently as a partner in Harry B. Culley & Company in Erie, Pa.

gaged in Columbus in preparing for a possible special session of the legislature which many persons believe will be called by the Governor at an early date. Although his position is a full-time, year-round one, Clerk Nixon is managing to carry some graduate studies at Ohio State University. His secretary in the state position is MICHAEL E. MISCONISH, '43, a former Wellsville high school teacher.

1934

Major and Mrs. Howard D. Hively (ALICE BEASLY) returned last October from England where the former had been on duty at a British jet plane base. After spending a leave in Florida, the Hivelys, with their son Howard, III, and daughter, Davis, are now at the Bergstrom AAF Base, Austin, Texas. Major Hively has a distinguished war record with the Royal Canadian Air Force and the U. S. Army Air Force, and, in August, 1947, set a new speed flight record for fighter planes. The Hivelys were visited in England last summer by a member of the Ohio University faculty MRS. HELEN HEDDEN ROACH, '36. For another reference to Mrs. Roach, see Class of 1923 notes.

DR. ROBERT M. LAUGHLIN, a Pittsburgh physician and husband of the former Margaret Abel, an instructor at Ohio University, 1929-38, reports that his brother-in-law, J. DONALD ABEL, also of the Class of 1934, has established his own business in Austin, Texas, selling office equipment and supplies. Don was associated with the McBee Company of Athens from 1934 until recently, having represented the local concern in Wheeling, W. Va., Indianapolis, Ind. and Dallas, Tex. He and Mrs. Abel (ARWANDA MILLER, '34) live in a ranch house at 2207 Townes Lane, Austin. "They have two children but no horses," writes Dr. Laughlin.

1935

VICTOR K. MILLER, Columbus, has been appointed general agent for the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, with offices at 21 E. State Street. He was formerly associate general agent in Columbus with Lincoln National Life Insurance Company.

RAY H. RUDOLPH, ex, a former McArthur teacher, has been promoted to the rank of major in the U. S. Air Force and is now attending Ohio State University under the Air Force Career Officer Educational Program.

1936

WILLIAM J. WIPFLER is head baseball and basketball coach and physical education instructor in the Elmira (N.Y.) Free Academy. He and Mrs. Wipfler (DORCAS WEST, '35, 2-yr.) have two sons, Bill, 5, and Bob, 3.

1937

DR. ROBERT C. SCHMID, a Phi Beta and former Ohio University Green and White editor and for sometime a member of the faculty of Vanderbilt University, has been awarded a Fulbright Scholarship for study in France during the current year. His doctorate was awarded by the University of Wisconsin in 1941. The Fulbright Scholarships are awarded under the terms of the Fulbright Act and provide for one year of study abroad in certain countries where there are war surplus supplies. The scholarships are good for nine months and are paid in the currency of the country in which study is pursued.

FELIX PRZEBESKI (Przebeszowski), principal of LaMesa School in Albuquerque, N. Mex., believes that there is no other city in the U. S. exceeding 100,000 in population that has a school system with as high a percentage of non-native pupils as those enrolled in the Albuquerque public schools. He recently conducted a poll of more than 500 of the 722 pupils in his school to gain information in planning a curriculum for transient students. He learned that only 106 pupils were native New Mexicans and that 37 states were represented, with Texas, Michigan, and Ohio contributing the majority of the out-of-staters. More than 40 per cent of the LaMesa students polled gave "health of self" or "health of some member of family" as the reason for coming to Albuquerque. Other reasons mentioned and ranking high were: work, business, climate, Army, and better schools. One student reported that his family settled there simply because they ran out of gas while driving through the city. LaMesa has a staff of 22 teachers.

1938

REV. JOHN W. MEISTER has accepted the call of the First Presbyterian Church in Ft. Wayne, Ind., to be its minister, and entered upon his duties on January 1. The call followed eight months spent in screening prospects by the pastor selection committee of the Ft. Wayne church. The committee listened to 28 sermons in 9 states before coming to a decision. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, the new minister studied law for one year after graduation from Ohio University and then enrolled at Princeton Theological Seminary from which he was graduated with honors. Four years were then spent as pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church in Steubenville after which he served the First Presbyterian Church in Sidney for a four-year period. Inherited immediately upon assuming the Ft. Wayne pastorate was the leadership of a million-dollar fund raising campaign for a new church.

ROGER H. DEAN
(See Class of 1940 Notes)

1939

FRED C. PLOPLIS and Mrs. Peoples (MARGARET NUNEMAKER) both members of the Class of 1939, are residents of Wickliffe and the parents of two children, Nancy Beth, now well toward five years of age, and Frederick Douglas, three this month. The father is claims supervisor for the Liberty Mutual Insurance Company in Cleveland.

WILLIAM J. MANNING (see picture), who started in the retail merchandising business as a stock boy in the F. W. Woolworth store in Athens, was this fall appointed manager of the Gladys Tevis Store (women's apparel) in Santa Barbara, Calif. He was sales manager of the Bennett Music Company of Santa Barbara for 18 months prior to accepting the store managership. Five war years were spent in the Army's finance branch. Bill married Helen Hefner of Endicott, N. Y., in 1946. The Californian is a brother of JOHN P. MANNING, '49, Youngstown.

Mrs. Fred Picard (RUTH ANNE ROBINSON—see picture) is chairman of the Children's Home Direct Service Twig of the recently-organized Service League in Athens. One of her committee's projects was to collect the "Dear Santa" letters of some 75 children of the Athens County Home and thereafter to contact local groups and individuals who would see to it that each child received a gift on Christmas morning—not just any gift, but "just what I asked Santa for," Mrs. Picard's husband is associate professor of economics at Ohio University.

In an issue of last September 21, a Juneau, Alaska, newspaper reported that "a young doctor who came to Alaska direct from his residency in St. Louis just a year ago has found himself getting many years' experience in one." The news story went on to say that DR. E. H. "EDDIE" DUNN is physician-in-charge of the Hudson Stueck Memorial Hospital, a part of the Episcopal Mission at Fort Yukon. He is the only doctor in an extremely large area. Besides being the physician and surgeon, Dr. Dunn is his own laboratory technician, as well as purchasing agent for the hospital. Fort Yukon is several miles north of the Arctic Circle.

ROGER J. JONES, JR., a senior in the University of Cincinnati Law School has been honored with selection for membership on the Board of Editors of the Cincinnati Law Review. Son of ROGER J. JONES, SR., '13, Athens attorney, and Mrs. Jones (MARGARET MOORE, '12, 2-yr.), the Cincinnati student will graduate in May and take the Ohio Bar Examination in June. He is married and has one child.

After four years in the Navy as a landing signal officer on an aircraft carrier, ROGER H. DEAN (see picture) returned to Athens in 1947 and acquired the local Lincoln-Mercury automobile agency which is now the largest such agency in the state in dollar volume of business. Last fall, he acquired the Lincoln-Mercury agency in Chillicothe and a Ford agency in Charleston, W. Va. The latter is the largest Ford dealership in West Virginia and one of the five largest in the Midwest. In his three dealerships, Mr. Dean employs some 150 persons and his operations are in excess of $8,000,000 annually. Associated with Roger Dean, Inc., in the local establishment, near the Ohio University airport, are RALPH W. CLARK, '33, office manager; Mrs. Herbert Rath (JEAN MASERITZ, '49), clerk; and J. A. MAYERS, '48, and JAMES HALLETT, '49, salesmen. MRS. LUCILLE BLACKWOOD GOOD, '25, is office manager in Chillicothe. Mr. Dean married Betty Jane Westfall, a Columbus girl and a Denison University graduate. The Deans have a three-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Fred W. Fox (LEONA ALGEO) was forced by ill health to give up her position as director of music and religious education at the Hyde Park Community Methodist Church in Cincinnati last February. This fall, she underwent a thyroidectomy at University Hospital, Columbus, from which she is slowly recovering at her home in Oxford. "Incidentally," she wrote prior to the 1949 Ohio-Miami football game, "this is now the 5th year for me in Oxford and the 3rd Homecoming game with Ohio University. Though I have taken a royal beating for weeks preceding and following each game, I still have faith that "Next time, We'll show Miami!"

As dietitian for the University of Toledo cafeteria, GRACE L. GABLER plans and supervises the serving of meals to two thousand students and faculty members daily. She went to the university this fall after two and one-half years as manager of the coffee shop in Grace Smith's Restaurant in Toledo, Miss Gabler, who majored in institutional management and foods and nutrition at Ohio University, did her apprentice work in the Bell Telephone Company cafeteria in Dayton, her home city. For five years after that, she managed the Blue Moon Tea Room in Dayton.

MRS. ELSA RAUTENBERG JOBE, who holds a secretarial position with the Eastman Kodak Company at Rochester, reports that the body of her husband, the late ROBERT E. JOBE, '43, was brought from the Philippines a year ago for reburial in the United States and now lies in a Springfield, Ohio, cemetery. Bob was one of Ohio University's 220 Gold Star men. An Infantry lieutenant, he was killed April 15, 1945, by enemy machine gun fire on the island of Luzon.

An event of real interest to her many friends, reported during a recent visit to the Alumni Office, is the marriage, Aug. 22, 1948, of MARIAN J. HOOPER to John D. Baum. Both Mr. and Mrs. Baum are engaged in work on Ph.D. degrees at Yale University, the former in mathematics and the latter in psychology. Mr. Baum graduated from Yale in 1941 and received a master's degree from the New Haven school in 1949.

MARJORIE J. MALONE, B.S.Ed. '42, M.Ed. '49, is state extension director of elementary vocal music on the staff of Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge. For the past six years she has been supervisor of vocal music in one of the Athens County consolidated schools. Miss Malone's mother, MRS. FLEDA DOOLITTLE MALONE, '38, is a teacher in the Coolville school. The husband and father, Dr. J. A. Malone, is deceased.

A promise on last month's "Marriages" page is carried out with publication in this issue of the picture of Mr. and Mrs. David M. Griffith, a bride and groom of last May now living in Cleveland. Mrs. Griffith (DOROTHY NETHING) is a member of the staff of the Brooklyn-Parma Branch of the Y.W.C.A. Her husband is in the advertising department of the Cleveland News.

EDNA WODARSKY, B.S. '43, B.S.C.E. '44, the first woman student ever to receive a degree in Civil Engineering at Ohio University, has achieved another distinction. She has just received a certificate from the State of Ohio as a registered professional engineer, and become the first woman in the Cleveland area to achieve full professional standing. Requirements for a certificate are four years of college work, four years of practical experience, and the passing of an extremely rigid examination. Miss Wodarsky is a civil engineer with the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics. At Ohio University, she was a member of Phoenix and Mortar Board as well as other honor societies. Never taking advantage of the chivalrous impulses of male members of her engineering classes, Miss Wodarsky won their respect and ready acceptance by carrying her own transit and other equipment on field trips.

DALE C. ENGLE, who played a 26-week summer season with the Red Barn Players in the Red Barn Theatre near Westboro, Mass., is continuing with this group for a season of winter stock in the Lowell, Mass., Opera House. During the past summer, Dale appeared in "Rains," "The Cat and the Canary," "The Whipping Boy," and "Lo and Behold." The last named is a musical review which is being heralded as a coming Broadway hit.

After attending the summer session of the Indiana University Graduate School last year, in which he pursued studies in the fields of English and philosophy, DALE L. VAN METER returned to Lafayette College in September to begin his third year as an instructor in English and public speaking.

BITTY E. PIERPOINT, who has a clerk-typist position with the Veterans Administration in Columbus, finds time to court the muse of poetry. Some of her work appeared in the 1949 edition of "The Poetry Digest," while other poems from her pen will appear in the 1950 Poetry Edition of "We—the People."

Mr. and Mrs. J. Bernard White (THEODORA FRAZIER, '45) are residents of Sand Springs, Okla., where the former, an

Ohio State University graduate, is engaged in a food retailing business with his father. Mrs. White's brother, RICHARD C. FRAZIER, '41, received a Bachelor of Laws degree from Ohio State in June, 1948, and is now an insurance adjuster with the Ohio Casualty Insurance Co. in Hamilton.

Three Ohio University grads were recipients of degrees at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, in September, 1949. They were ALFRED J. CANDIK, who received an A.M. degree in psychology; RELLA R. KING, '47, an A.M. in hearing and speech therapy; and MARY CATHERINE NICHOLSON, '47, a Bachelor of Laws degree.

Only recently reported was a happy event of Mar. 18, 1947. On that date, ANN C. ROSS, of Flemington, W. Va., became Mrs. John R. Dunn. She and her husband now have a combination photography studio and gift shop in Buckhannon, W. Va. Mrs. Dunn manages the gift shop end of the business, while her husband takes care of the photography.

After a year as a kindergarten teacher on the Island of Lanai, Territory of Hawaii, HILDA V. OYSTER has returned to the States and is teaching in Brooklyn Village, a Cleveland suburb.

MARGARIT L. CHENY is an interior decorator and designer in the Bureau of Interior Decoration of the Armstrong Cork Company in Lancaster, Pa. "I have the good fortune," writes Miss Cheny, "of working with Hazel Dell Brown, who is head decorator for the company and a well-known decorator in her own right."

FRID A. TATE and Mrs. Tate (PHYLLIS CASS, '47) are residents of Cambridge, Mass., where the former is engaged in graduate work in organic chemistry and holding a teaching fellowship at Harvard, and the latter is serving as a stenographer for the director of the Harvard University Press. Mrs. Tate reported that upon leaving the Cambridge Center for Adult Education recently, she ran into a classmate, JEAN PATON, who has a position at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

JAMES M. HILLARD, formerly assistant librarian of the Free Public Library in Summit, N.J., is now librarian of the Ft. Smith (Ark.) Public Library. It is the oldest public library in the state and is located in the state's second largest city.

MELVIN D. WEISS has left the Painesville store of Sears, Roebuck & Company, where he was sales promotion and advertising manager, to join the sales staff of Television Station WEWS, the Scripps-Howard radio station in Cleveland.

VIRGINIA CLINE, instructor in speech and director of dramatics at the high school in Girard, spent last summer at the University of Denver working on a master's degree in drama. Other Ohio University graduates now at the University of Denver are ED KEMP, '48, and BOB OKRY, '49, both pursuing graduate work in dramatics, and MALCOLM RUHL, '50x, who is there with his wife (BETTY LOU SMITH, '49) and completing an A.B. degree in drama.

The U. M. A. News, the newly established monthly publication of the Undergraduate Medical Association of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, is edited by RICHARD W. JUVANCIC (see picture). Mr. Juvancic is a second-year student in the School of Medicine and first editor of The News, a publication for both students and faculty.

LIEUT. JOHN M. NOLAN, who was reported in the December Alumnus as being located at Ft. Benning, Ga., is an instructor in the ROTC unit at Balboa High School, Balboa Heights, Canal Zone. Mrs. Nolan (ROSEMARY SNACKENBERG, '48) and infant son, William Boise, are still residents of Columbus, Ga., and it is presumed they will be joining Lieutenant Nolan before long.

RAYMOND L. STURM is enrolled in the School of Sacred Music at Union Theological Seminary, in New York City, preparing to become a choirmaster. The School is just across the street from the Juilliard School of Music where Ray frequently sees DAVID FLANAGAN, '46, and WILLIAM GROMKO, '46x. Ray attended the first concert of the season of the Juilliard orchestra, in which both Flanagan and Gromko appeared in the viola section.

Every year the Ohio University Registrar's Office computes the scholastic averages of the graduates of the year and issues a report showing the relative standings of the members of the graduating class. The Class of 1949, composed of the February, June and August sections, numbered 1,214 members. The report shows relative standings in each section as well as the all-class averages. In the latter, the following ranked from first to tenth, respectively: GEORGE E. MARSHALL (see "Deaths," page 23), Fairport Harbor; BETTY ANN MEYERS, Dayton; ROBERT D. PEEL, Newark; MICHAEL DODAK, Lakewood; MARILYN R. MIELKE, Sandusky; JANET I. SEIP, Easton, Pa.; ARDATH R. KUESTHARDT, Chillicothe; PAUL E. BASHFORD, Athens; DANIEL H. STRIGHT, Carbondale; and ROBERT A. OSTERYOUNG, Cleveland.

dean at Bryan Hall, Ohio University's new dormitory for girls, and a graduate assistant in human relations. She is also a member of the recently-appointed Alumni Survey Committee, the activities of which will be reported next month.

JOHN URBAN, Lorain, received the highest grade in the professional architectural engineering training examination given by the State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Surveyors last July. Only persons holding engineering degrees may take this examination. Those who pass it receive a certificate as "Engineer in Training" and after satisfactory completion of four years of engineering work become professional engineers. Engineer Urban received a Bachelor of Science in Architectural Engineering degree at Ohio University.

CLAIR E. BERRY, an August graduate, is now a first-year student in the University of Cincinnati Law School.
